A DEDICATION

A school's power is inherent in its teachers, who over the years give of themselves as they entrust to young minds the gifts of worlds, of ideas, of purposes, of ideals — and to youthful spirits the gifts of vision, of encouragement, of inspiration.
To three such teachers who have devoted more years than anyone else to enhance the worth of GHS — to Mary Ellen Blackmon, Estelle Mitchell, Ida Belle Moore — we proudly and gratefully dedicate this 1964 Whirligig.

FOREWORD

There are always the buildings, with bricks mellow and old.
They change little. The campus, wide with pines, with dogwoods and oaks, whose leaves shimmer and flame and die, reflects the varying faces of the seasons.
But again these changes are small, for there are greater innovations at GHS. They are evident in the faces and the attitudes of students, who come as sophomores — frightened, brash, and immature — and who leave as seniors, altered by books, by people, by thinking, by living.

The pages of this 1964 Whirligig reflect the experiences — some bitter, some sweet — that produce the advances and innovations we call "Progress."

Always on the move . . .

Caught by the bell as he climbs the "up" stairs, George Grimstone is almost overwhelmed by frenzied sophomores thundering down.

"That roar sounded more like a herd of dinosaurs than people!" George exclaims, shakily peeling himself off the freshly painted wall.

"Hey, who are you? Is that crazy costume a boy's shift?"

"I'm George Grimstone, a transfer student. If this is a high school, why do people run loose? Some boys just about trampled me."

"Grimstone, they were only a few of the guys going to lunch."

"What's that loud ringing? I guess I was hit harder than I realized."

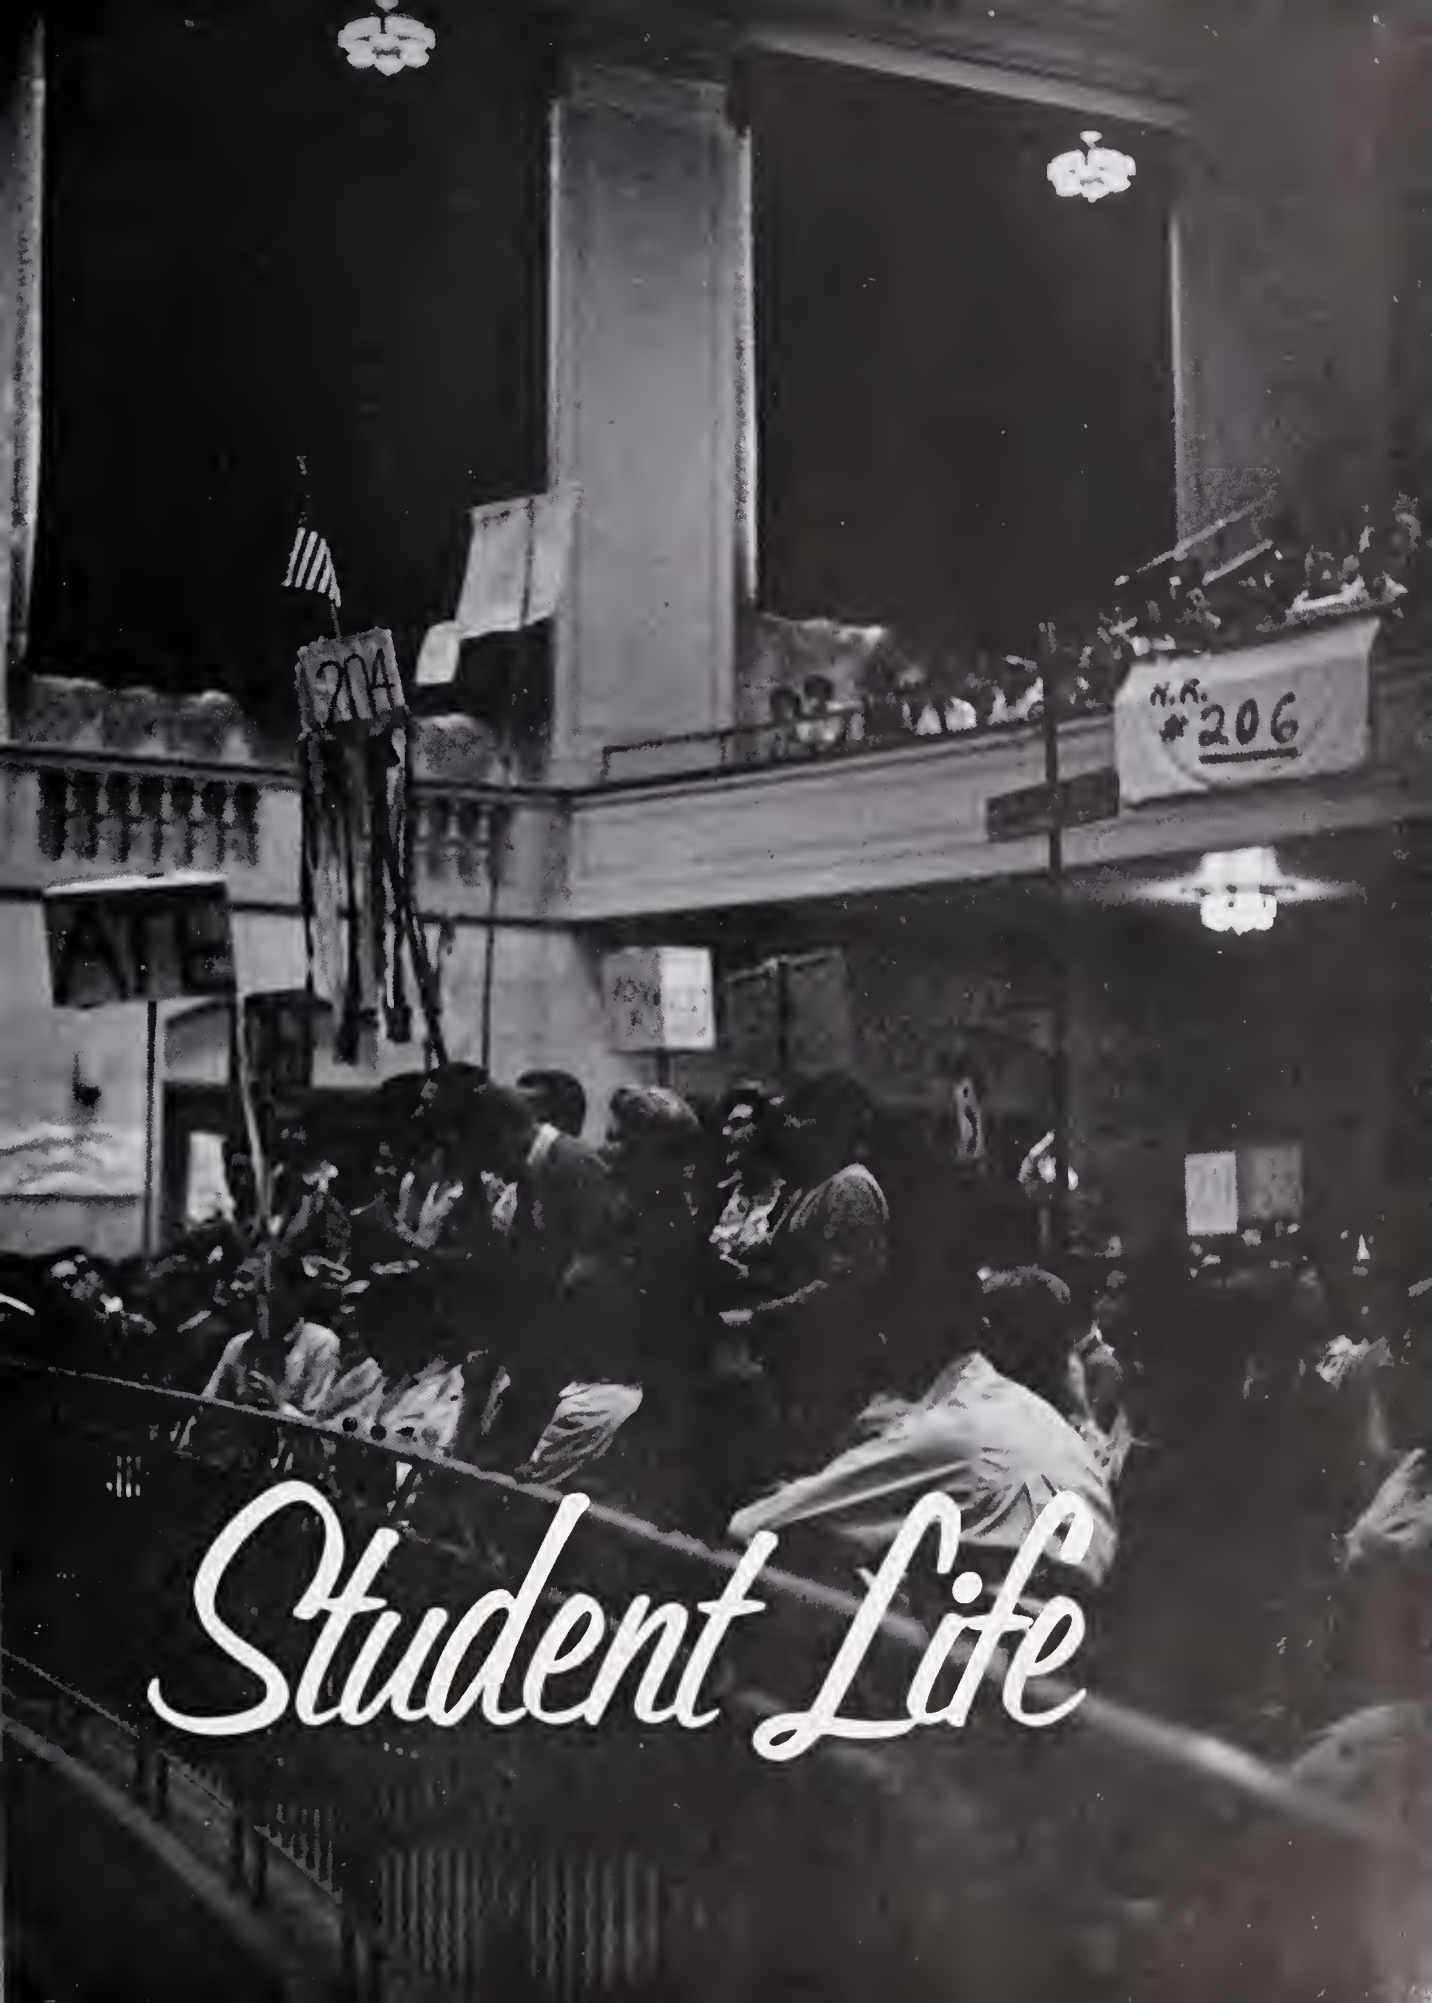
"That's just the tardy bell for class."

"Why aren't you in class?"

"Oh, I'm privileged; I'm on the traffic squad. Squad members keep the students in order while they change classes."

"Then why isn't everyone orderly?"

"Well, uh . . . we'd better hurry on to class, Grimstone."



Student Life

HUMID DAYS and the approach of Autumn bring the return of students to GHS.

Some know the right way . . . others search

SQUAD MEMBERS regulate student traffic between classes.

When days are still humid, and days are still summer, we return to GHS. Seniors come, proud to be oldest, proud to know what to do, how to do it, proud to know where they are going. Juniors come, proud to be older than sophomores but aware of subservience to seniors. Sophomores come — pushing, lagging, frightened, loud. They need the traffic squad's help as they search for the right door, the right building, with an assumed confidence they do not feel.

With experience come changes and confidence

Some stand alone—the sophomore, the transfer student, students new to Greensboro — in the melee of that first hectic September day. Soon they too will feel a part of GHS, and, like others before them and around them, they will be changed by their years here. But now they can only guess what lies ahead. As they sit in assembly the first day — listening to a principal new to them, being introduced to an imposing array of school leaders, and dreading so many unknowns — theirs is not the confidence of the experienced upperclassmen who, waiting in atenuated lines, blithely greet old friends and register for classes with familiar teachers.

"Where am I? They told me I'd find civilized creatures here."

SOPHOMORES are introduced to student body officers and GHS regulations in their registration assembly.

REGISTERING for a popular class means a long wait in line.

WITH INTENSE concentration, GHS students become a vital part of the football game.

All share an infectious enthusiasm

When summer drifts into autumn and the odor of burning leaves hangs in the air, our football season begins. Carrying blankets, wearing heavier coats against the chill of the night wind, we stream into the stadium. Standing together to yell, to sing our Alma Mater, to cheer our team, we are melded into a unit that shares an intangible thing called "school spirit" — a feeling brought to vivid life by the urgency of victory and the infectious enthusiasm of cheerleaders.

ENERGETIC cheerleaders evoke vociferous Whirlie support.

Whether playing or watching, each one participates

WHIRLIE REINFORCEMENTS watch intently, hoping for a chance to substitute.

WHIRLIE PLAYERS, preparing their defense, study opponents' tactics.

AFTER-GAME open houses offer change of pace following tension and stress in the stadium.

Streaming into the gym after a game, our shivering evaporates in the warmth of excited chatter, of music and dancing, of encounters with friends. Then at last exhausted, our energy all used up, we stand near a friendly shoulder and just watch. Or we keep remembering the hopeful players hunched on the bench, and the other surging, vibrant ones out on the field — some enduring disappointment, some feeling victory, and all of them sharing with us who watched a conviction of being truly a part of something big and important, a moment of growing maturity.

INFORMAL GROUP discussions give students an opportunity to exchange ideas and formulate conclusions.

GHS English curriculum mirrors the progress

English, one of the most comprehensive departments at GHS, includes courses in Shakespeare, creative writing, dramatics, and speech, as well as basic English. Inquisitive sophomores meet chivalric characters in Tennyson's Idylls of the King and, through persistent efforts in weekly themes, improve their own writing skills. Juniors laboriously compose short stories and develop an appreciation for the works of American authors: experienced seniors meet the challenge of Chaucer's "Prologue" and Canterbury Tales and overcome the autobiographical obstacle.

MODEL OF Shakespeare's Globe Theater enriches study of Elizabethan drama.

A composition laboratory program and a number of accelerated classes provided added stimulation for probing minds. While Shakespeare classes delve into the wonders of the Elizabethan age and its literary masterpieces, creative writing courses attempt written expression from various viewpoints.

As a part of the curriculum, students are instructed in the fuller use of the library. As they soon discover, the library's ponderous volumes and well-stocked files of research data prove invaluable when term papers must be written. In addition, an ample collection of fiction and nonfiction provides necessary materials for the nine required yearly book reports, as well as for added reading.

By broadening its scope, the English department has expanded to meet the interests of the eighteen hundred students at GHS.

LIBRARY facilities extend from daily newspapers to myriad research materials.

of our changing age

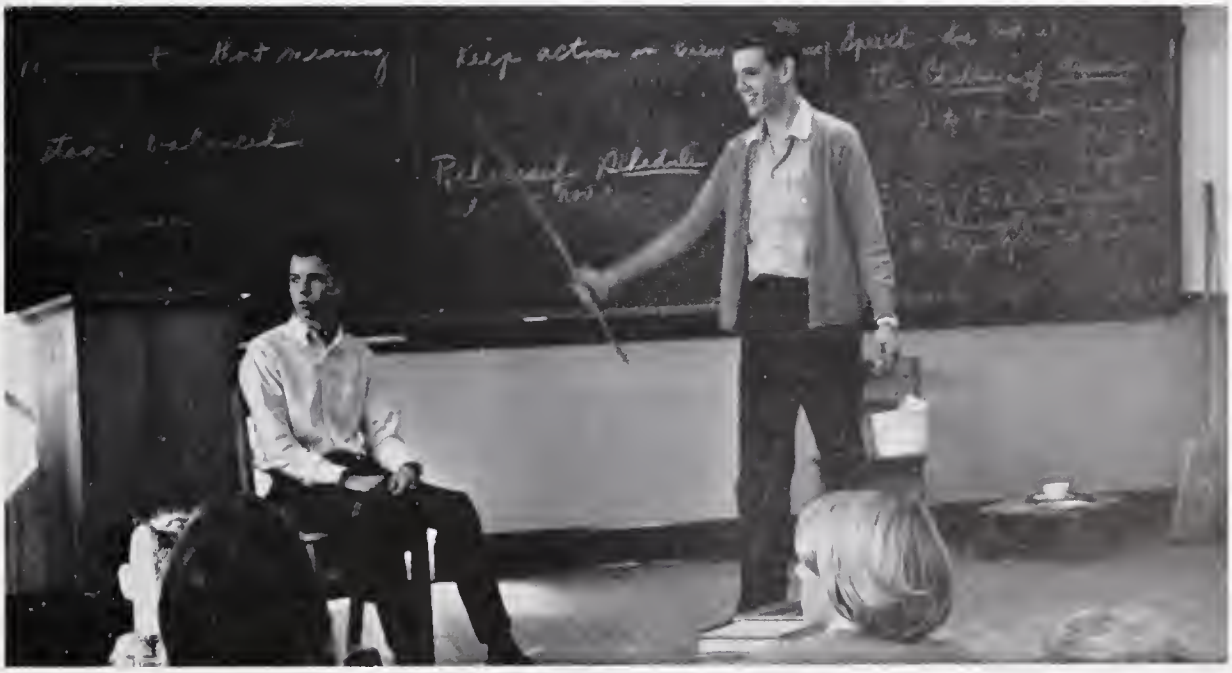
DRAMA CLASS gives students practice in stage movements and characterization.



History classes probe the mysteries and traditions of ancient cultures through films, maps, and up-to-date textbooks. Traveling to the lands of the Sphinx, the Colosseum, and the Parthenon, students re-enter the worlds of bygone civilizations. Social science courses stress current events, not only in connection with ancient and American history, but also to arouse an awareness of present-day crises and triumphs.

Within GHS's modern language laboratory, education utilizes a highly developed form of mimicry. French and Spanish students recite foreign dialogues with painstaking precision, while in the Latin courses, the history and culture of Rome become an integral part of translations of classical authors — Caesar, Livy, Cicero, and Virgil. To provide a basis for future readings, the Latin department encourages the study of mythology, Roman military operations, and ancient dignitaries.

MAPS BRING graphic reality to history discussion.

TV HISTORY is a challenge to students, requiring careful listening and expert notetaking.

HISTORY students study important current events in weekly newspaper, AMERICAN OBSERVER.

LANGUAGE LAB facilitates drill in pronunciation and correct verb forms.

Languages and history are links to older cultures

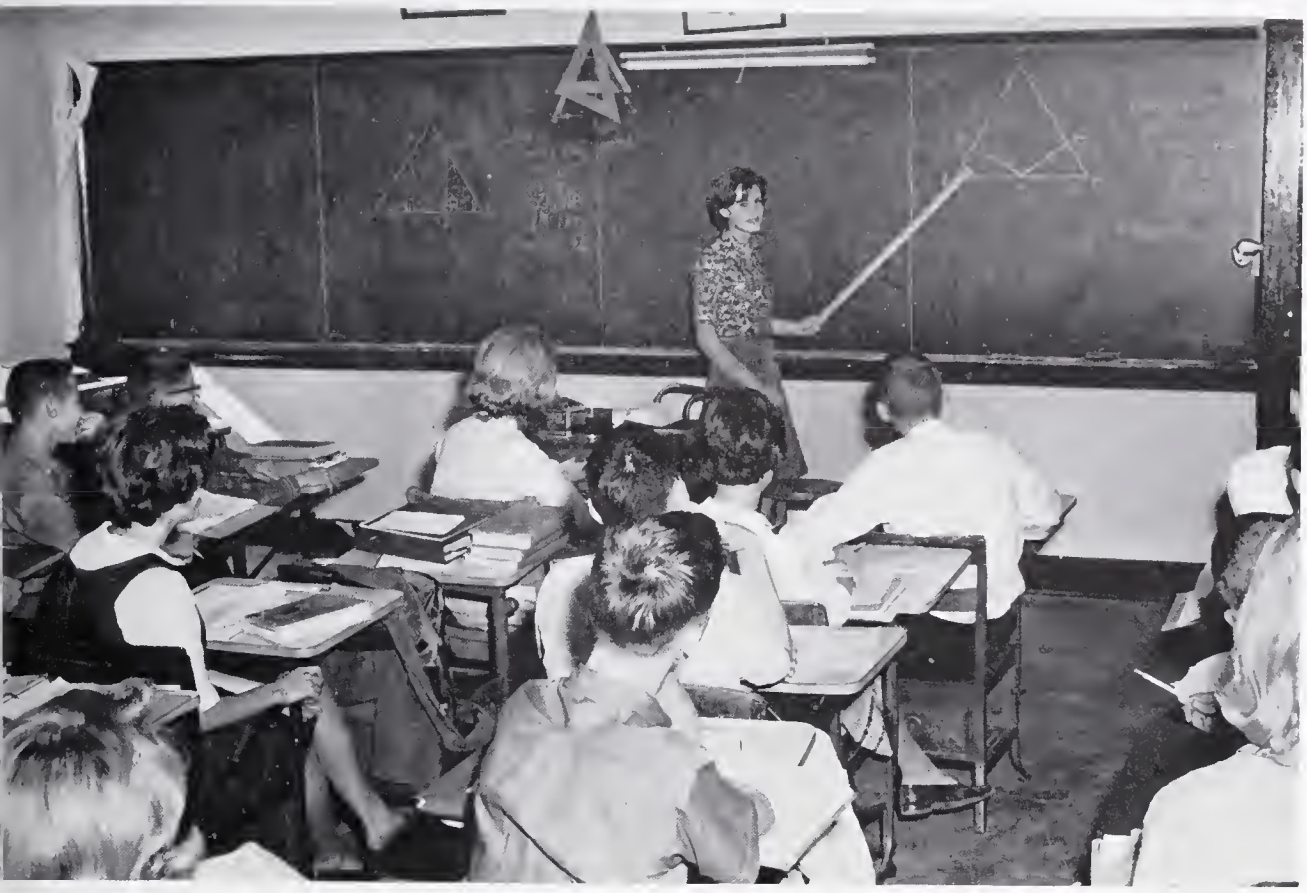
JCL inductees pledge to carry on torch of Roman culture.

PRECISE BALANCE of matter is necessary for successful chemical experiments.

HAND LENSES aid biology students in study of mosses and liverworts.

Amid the pungent odor of formaldehyde, pupils discover many intricacies of life by dissecting various biological specimens. In advanced biology the class disects the foetal pig as part of the study of anatomy. In a nearby chemistry lab, strange undulating mixtures in beakers engross each student. Physics scholars probe the bewildering content of materials and forces. With emphasis on complex laws of nature, students work to understand our constantly changing environment.

LUCID EXPLANATIONS of physical principles enlighten baffled student.



EXPLANATION to classmates complete a board assignment in geometry class.

Science and math convert curiosity to understanding

Advanced courses in college algebra, trig, and analytics open a fuller, more specialized world of mathematics to GHS students. Accuracy, thoroughness, and neatness are important phases of geometry as instructors emphasize correct proofs of theorems and precise constructions of problems. Industrious algebra students concentrate on graphs, word problems, and systems of equations. Through geometric and algebraic reasoning, students come to understand a complexity of practical situations.

TWO HEADS are better than one in solving algebraic graph equations.

Home Ec classes nurture tomorrow's homemakers

PROFICIENCY in meal preparation is reward for home economics students.

In the home economics program, girls acquire womanly prowess not only in cooking and sewing, but also in buying, planning, decorating, and many other essential phases of home management. In child development, students work every day with kindergarten children, observing five-year-olds and learning how to meet some of their needs. In Family Life, mock weddings, though they unite couples in a joking, rather unholy state, are an enjoyable method of education. Authentic wedding attire and preparations, a "ceremony" and reception enlighten both boys and girls about many of the details of a real wedding. Class discussions and readings further open many areas of interest to these future homemakers.

MOCK WEDDING instructs Family Life students in proper nuptial procedure.

IN KINDERGARTEN, Child Care student learns to deal expertly with young children.

CLERICAL PRACTICE teaches students to operate a variety of office machines.

Future careers and future cars motivate students

Typewriters click and pencils race across note pads as classes in typing and shorthand start students toward preparation for clerical and stenographic jobs. Clerical practice gives further training and makes many machines familiar. In bookkeeping and business information classes, students learn skills that open the way to many careers.

Traffic rules and mechanical terms, textbook instruction and behind-the-wheel experience — all are elements in developing safe and courteous drivers in Driver Training.

DRIVER TRAINING student learns the fundamentals of operating a car.

BOTH COLOR BLEND and design are effectively employed in mosaic work.

Imaginative students create art work from ideas

PATIENCE and precision are essential traits of successful drafting student.

Imagination applied to clay, mosaics, water-colors, and oils transforms ideas into visible art constructions. With each carefully molded curve of sculpture, each brush stroke of paint, each tile fitted into a mosaic puzzle, the art student calls upon his accumulation of knowledge and personal experience, and his sense of color and design to guide him in the process of creation.

A thorough background of art evolution, a conception of balance, proportion, and color techniques, and artistic trade secrets stimulate the desire to perfect and utilize creative talents.

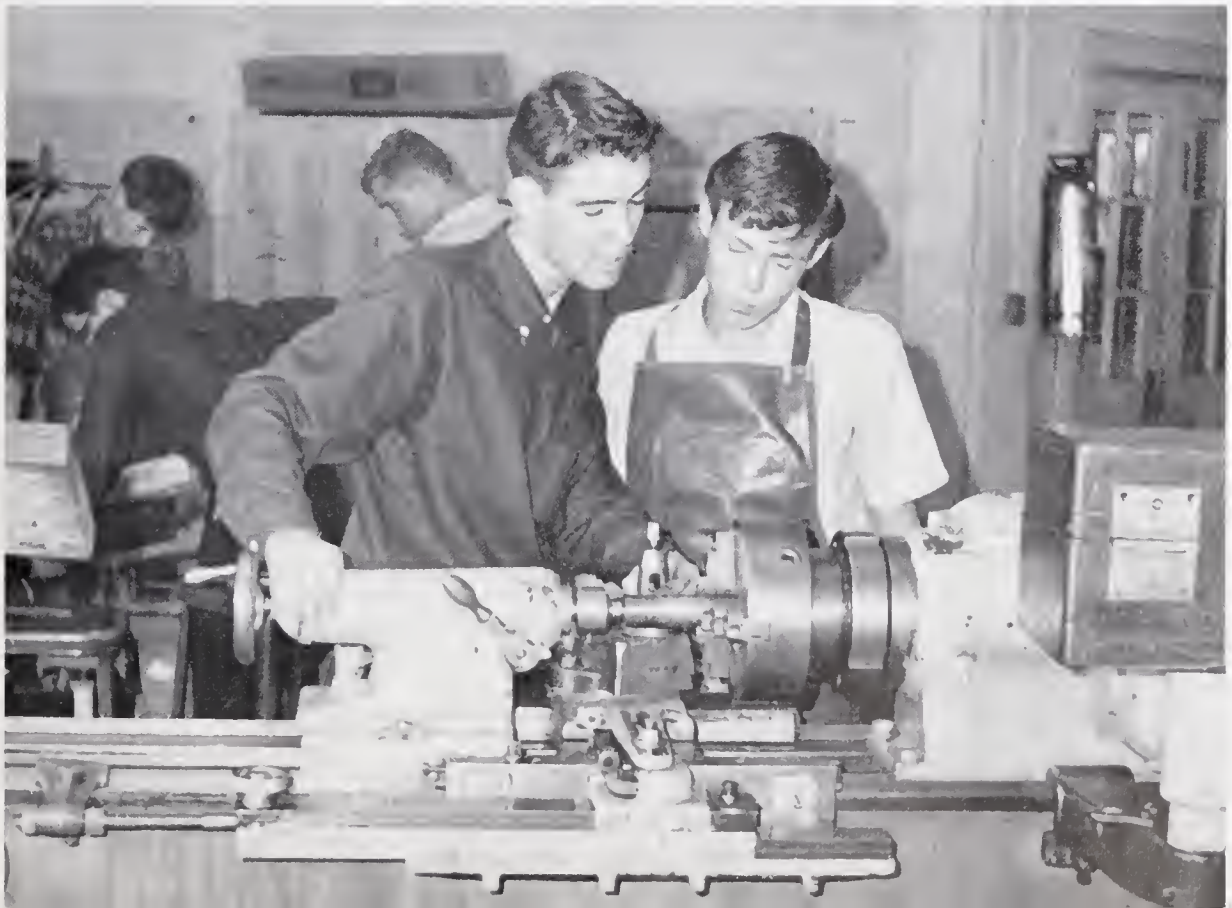
WOODSHOP student learns to transform irregular hunk of wood into a finely molded article of furniture.

Accurately-sketched dream houses and buildings of tomorrow reveal the imagination of the student architect. Architects-to-be painstakingly design and add impeccable finishing touches to their plans. Combining artistic flair and the knowledge of mathematic principles, drafting courses stress precise construction.

The steady buzz of shop machines, grinding or polishing wood or metal, is the sound of production. Shop students, intent on perfecting the beauty and utility of their products, labor diligently over their work. Their finished products are created with anything but chance, for the craftsmen carefully map plans for their work. Often awarded prizes for their handiwork, GHS shop students gain deep satisfaction in striving to develop practical talents.

Shopwork acquaints students with mechanical skills

COMPLEXITY of equipment in machine shop becomes familiar with use.



IMPROVED Grove is eye-appealing product of student workmanship.

Students cherish traditional places and productions

IN PREPARATION for traditional Christmas pageant, Senior Class members work together.

It is lunchtime and for a moment the grove stands empty. There are only the trees, brick walls, and azaleas, and the memories of countless students who have stood there. For the grove is a traditional gathering place for talk and gossip and a last-minute smoke.

As many others have done, some have hurried to the cafeteria, to socialize across the same old tables; others have rushed to the parking lot, aware that sixth period is only moments away and that, in their dash to a favorite eating place, they must make every second count.

The machinery of our world seemed to tick smoothly. But on November 22, our world turned upside down, when in sixth period, our classes were interrupted to announce the assassination of President Kennedy. No words could express the grief, the numbness, the shock, the feeling of desolate emptiness. Yet the machinery of our world ticked on.

Though progress demands change, some traditions, like the Christmas pageant, are too dear to lose. The pageant itself may vary from one December to another, but always there is a Christmas program produced by seniors. And as days grow shorter and colder, winter brings the basketball season — and with it excitement, an accelerated pace, and a thrilling surge of school spirit.

ELECTRIFYING excitement of basketball season arouses the competitive spirit of both participants and students.

JUNIORS PREPARE for College Board Examinations by taking aptitude tests.

MID-SEMESTER exams assume many forms; choir examination is oral.

The termination of the first semester converts routine schedules into the chaos of mid-term madness. Original exam plans are revised by insistent and repeated interruptions of January snows. The snow eventually melts, however, and students return to confront, without further procrastination, mid-term exams.

REGISTRATION at mid-term is simplified by a new method in each student's classes.

delayed exams, and romantic Midwinter's Dance

As exam week expires, students, temporarily relieved of burdensome assignments, feed notebooks to overstuffed lockers and gleefully desert the campus. The delicious relaxation of "semester break" is enhanced by a new type of registering, completed in each class before exams and eliminating the frenzied dash from teacher to teacher on the old-style registration day. To veterans of other ravaging registration days, this is a happy change.

Under flickering gas lights and festooned net, Midwinter's Dance of January 25 climaxes the first semester activities. The unromantic gym disappears behind imaginative decorations inspired by the theme, "Days of Wine and Roses." A familiar combo's blaring rhythm catalyzes spirited chatter as dancers mingle.

MUSICAL STRAINS from the Ascots blend with international decorations for a romantic Midwinter's Dance.

SPIRITED STUDENTS urge Whirlies to a victory in 1963 4-A Tournament.

Signs of spring: tournament trials, convention fever,

The Mid-March state basketball tournament marks the finale of another thrilling sports season. Exuberant crowds are unified in spirited support of team triumph. Brief silences explode into thunderous cheers when a ball swishes through the net, or into anxious gasps when eyes patrol the clock's inexorable progress.

Each year Awards Day brings public acknowledgment of superior performances in many areas. Students who receive silver trophies, cash awards, and public acclaim contribute to the prominent reputation of GHS.

In April the nominating convention transforms the auditorium into a bizarre and raucous scene. Imaginative skits promote unrestrained hilarity, and a continuous hubbub brings repeated pounding of the presiding officer's gavel. Ducking showers of confetti and craning to see beyond gaudy banners supported precariously on tall poles, students succumb to the contagion of convention fever — a fever subsiding only when election results are finally announced.

ON AWARDS DAY GHS recognizes students excelling in scholarship, music, and athletics.

"LOOK OUT, Ocean Drive! I'm most at home where people get back to nature."

The first signs of May are sunny dandelions on the campus and preparations for weekend beach trips. Concentration grows increasingly difficult; we persistently peer out windows, unable to resist the fantasies of daydreams. All too soon, another school year is whizzing downhill toward its inevitable end.

Class Day traces with nostalgic comedy the chronological events of the high school years. A satirical parody, "West High Story," is the Senior Class' last dramatic contribution to a student assemblage.

For the seniors, spring exams are the one remaining challenge. A desolate and strangely hollow feeling overwhelms the senior who, after completing his last exam, slams an empty locker and wanders down a vacant hall, listening to the fading echoes of his footsteps.

With the cooperation of spring's favorable weather, the 1963 May Day pageant is a traditionally excellent performance. The scene is "Merrie England," where a palace courtyard is invaded by uninhibited peasants, arriving to entertain Queen Carole. Jovial jesters amuse the court with mirthful antics, flipping somersaults and hopping across the lawn in a game of leapfrog. The spectacular events of merry-making are climaxed by the royal procession — Queen Carole and attendants — from the courtyard.

Graduation is a time for reflection over the past merging with the present through the progress of time and achievement. Solemn but glowing faces reveal conflicting emotions as precious diplomas are grasped.

moments of reflection

Wonderful moments to remember — this is the appropriate theme of the spring prom, finale of GHS social functions. In memories of all who have attended, the aura of a dream world will always linger.

ASSEMBLED for the last time, the Class of 1963 is solemn and thoughtful.

DANCERS relax to the soft music and soothing atmosphere of the Prom's "Moments to Remember."

Regulated by bells...

George Grimstone follows conscientious pupils as they scurry to their classrooms before the stragglers stroll in, still talking. A tardy bell punctuates the noise, committing students to the teacher's authority.

"Please pass your themes to the front. Next Monday's composition should show improved sentence variety." The class greets the announcement with submissive stares; pencils scribble notations in assignment books.

The instructor discusses the day's lesson, as eager students listen attentively while others hardly heed her words "Please take out two sheets of paper for a pop test." Exasperated glances bounce about the room, students emit poorly muffled groans, notebooks click, and the pencil sharpener grinds in anticipation of the disaster. Moments later scratching pencils frustrate the student who "just can't quite remember the answer."

Once again the piercing bell releases a stampeding herd, as another fifty-five minute class ends.

SUPERINTENDENT Philip J. Weaver (seated) and Mr. David K. Tally, secondary school supervisor, are interested in copy of GHS newspaper High Life.

On the school board's 1963 agenda two projects especially concerned GHS — both resulting in freshness and a new look. For a year maintenance department painters were busy transforming our corridors and classrooms with a variety of colors, and late in spring the music building was air-conditioned throughout.

This year the board petitioned the city for a new driveway to alleviate traffic problems around GHS and Kiser. The new project, when completed, will include another exit to Westover Terrace and the paving of the present parking lot.

From last September 30 to November 8, Mr. Weaver, with 29 other superintendents from the U. S. and Canada, attended a University of Chicago seminar designed to bring the men up-to-date on school administration.

The Grimsley Senior High School PTSA, mindful of its objectives to promote the welfare of all students within its scope, provided through its budget financial help for welfare needs within the school, a school beautification program, the guidance department, the yearbook, Youth Council and Student Council activities, scouting, and the library. The PTSA also gave a reception in November honoring the teachers. This informal and sociable meeting held in the boys' gym, gave parents an opportunity to meet teachers and discuss matters of interest to both.

Four meetings of the PTSA were held during the school year, but the executive board met each month to handle routine business. The two main projects of the PTSA this year were the paving of the parking lot (promised by the school board for the spring of 1964) and active opposition to the proposed routing of Highway No. 220 by the Grimley campus.

PTSA OFFICERS are, seated, Mrs. Eugene Lashley, President; Mrs. John Jessup, Jr., Secretary. Standing: Mr. J. Trevor McLean, Treasurer; Mr. Glenn Ellstrom, Vice-President.

Mr. A. P. Routh, in his thirtieth year as principal of GHS, saw overcrowding and its attendant problems once more relieved by the opening of a new senior high school. Also, he saw his faculty reduced from 94 to 83, as several teachers went to the Ben. L. Smith High School as department heads.

Mr. Routh was especially active this year in helping get six new service clubs organized, including a boys' club sponsored by his own adult civic club. A major project he and the club carried out was inviting and caring for Hans-Rainer Trebin, an exchange student from Bavaria, during the second semester.

He and Mrs. Routh never missed a school dance or social event. And as always our principal was as regular in attendance at concerts, plays, and games as those who performed.

His faculty: enthusiastic teachers, fans, campaigners

With the opening of Smith High School, teachers at GHS went back with relief to their original schedules, and to fitting once more into one place and time for faculty meetings. The somewhat smaller faculty, however, continued to function as an organization, with active officers and a party to welcome new teachers. This event was a buffet supper at Guilford Club House, with Mr. Routh and Mr. Glenn demonstrating once more their adept frying of hamburgers by the hundreds.

In addition to assigned classes, GHS teachers maintained their traditional responsibilities of supporting school activities, often on nights and weekends — serving with enthusiasm as directors, advisors, fans. Some were delegates to NEA and helped elect Dr. Lois Edinger, UNC-G supervisor of student teachers, as 1964-65 President of NEA. Others were delegates to the state NCEA meeting, and several held professional office on various levels.

CHECKING student attendance and absences is chief responsibility of Miss Jean K. Wood.

WIN OR LOSE, our loyal assistant principal stays until the bitter end.

"PLEASE BUY a pencil! We bought ribbons from you during football season."

SCHOOL SPIRITED sophomores even enjoy waiting in line for tickets to a Whirlie game.

Sophomores progress from a junior high realm of LARGE SIZE has its advantages, but there are exceptions to every rule.

SOPHOMORE uses feminine charm to recruit help in putting up posters.

We Sophomores consider our first year in high school very special. To us it will always be "the year that was!" It was the year we entered the strange world of GHS and gained wonderful new privileges. As we grew accustomed to the campus with its many buildings, we became familiar with "up" and "down" stairs, "in" and "out" doors. Knowing our subordination to upperclassmen, we accepted both their directions and misdirections good naturedly.

Eager to be included in all phases of school life, we participated actively in a variety of events. With enthusiasm peculiar to sophomores, we pursued our class projects — the traditional pencil sale and sale of tickets for a Playmaster's production.

We became aware of the purpose of high school. Many of us began preparing ourselves for college entrance. Others began courses of study which would enable them to qualify for jobs upon graduation from high school. As a group we realized for the first time that going to school is more than just a routine way of living.

We exchanged ideas and shared our secrets and ambitions during classes and study periods; the halls echoed with our laughter and shouts. As we look backward on our first year at Grimsley Senior High School, we realize that in the course of our search for a place in its world, we have made many friends and lasting memories.

Ellstrom, Bradshaw serve as varsity cheerleaders

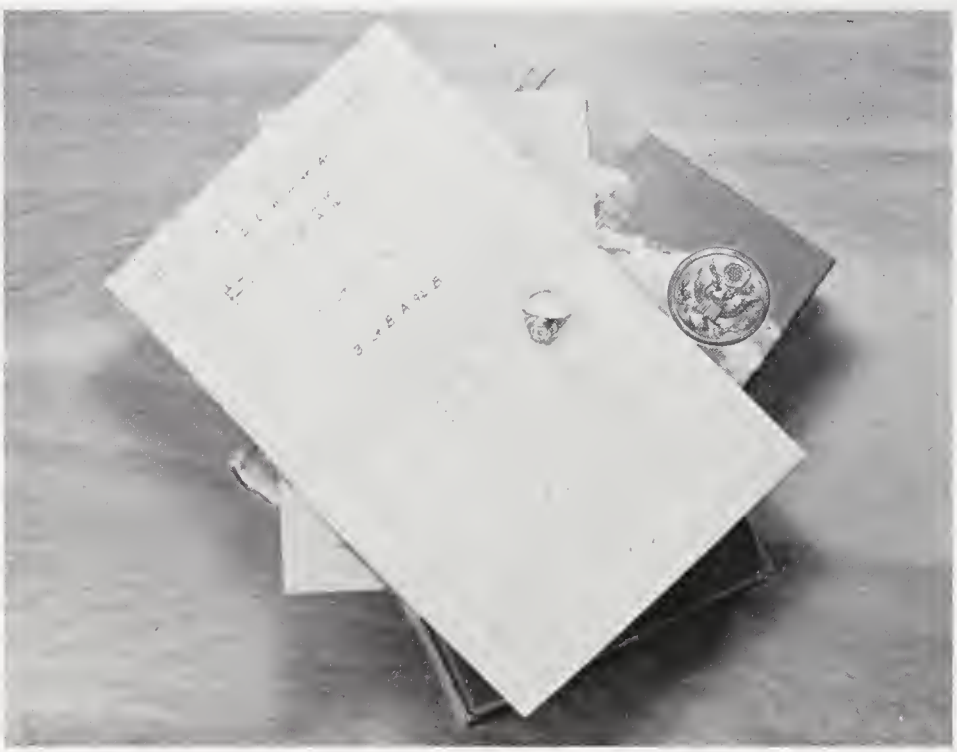
ARRIVAL of class rings symbolizes Junior's prestige.

Determined Juniors achieve their ambitious goals

A MASTERED U. S. History book, a commendable report card, and a class ring represent Junior achievement.



"I'm glad a class ring is not a nose ring!"

We, the Junior Class, are striving for seniority and success. Our abundant vitality and boundless energy move in numerous directions. One project out of the vast number was "Meet Me in St. Louis," our class play. It was the charming story of a family whose children schemed to keep their father from being transferred to New York and taking the family along. Devoted workers behind the scenes and in the play made it a smashing success. We may pat ourselves on the back for selling more tickets to this play than any other Junior Class in history! Money from ticket sales filled our treasury. We used these funds to pay for our section in Whirligig and to buy new stage equipment. Rev. Jack Roe, a guest speaker, addressed the Thanksgiving assembly, for which our class was also responsible.

We are the Junior Marshals, carrying out our duties with dignity and ease. Our time of ecstatic excitement comes with the arrival of class rings. It is not surprising to find us showing off our new status symbol to anyone who will notice. We also look forward to the spring Torchlight tapping, when juniors are tapped.

Our spirit never wanes; we are constantly on the move. Football and basketball games and pep rallies find us well represented and yelling with enthusiasm. Sport is placed out of our minds, however, when we take PSAT tests. Then serious thinking begins; dreams and goals grow into concrete plans for our future. We look forward to our senior year with anticipation, eager to meet those challenges that lie beyond the horizon — challenges that are stepping stones in our progress.

of boosting class treasury and improving GHS

JUNIOR CLASS officers are President Grimes, Giles, Dees, Advisor Miss Maunida Wales, and Bowen.

ADVISOR Miss Hines, Assistant Quinn, and Chief Albright prepare to assign duties to Marshals.

The auditorium lights dimmed, and the curtains swished apart. It was the night of the Junior Class Play. Many Junior Marshals served this night for the first time in their new positions. Giggles and nervous grins soon faded as the night wore on, and they accomplished their duties with ease.

Young men in dark suits and white-clad young ladies quickly mastered the art of "marshaling." Throughout the year, concerts and other school performances found Junior Marshals busily handing out programs, collecting tickets, and guiding members of the crowd to seats. Marshals, elected by their fellow students in each junior homeroom, were of real service to Grimsley students, parents and visitors.

Marshals are indispensable at school functions

Junior Class Play draws largest crowd in history

JUNIORS take to the rooftops during the monsoons.

EXCHANGE STUDENT, Hans-Rainer Trebin from Germany, enlightens classmates.

German Hans-Rainer Trebin, Christmas Pageant,

SHEPHERDS' WATCH and other Christmas scenes comprised senior presentation of "The Christmas Story."

Anticipating a year filled with excitement and activity, the Class of '64 plunged energetically into its Senior year. The desire for a strong academic background was apparent as Seniors struggled to master Chaucer, Shakespeare, advanced mathematics, the writing of term papers, physics, chemistry, and foreign languages. We realized — and none too soon — that there was little time left for college preparation, and for many, the attitude toward learning changed almost overnight.

Late in November, classes came to a temporary standstill as shocked, grief-stricken classmates mourned the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. We were proud as we saw our nation quiver only momentarily in the face of a tragedy that shook the world, and then continue to stand — united and strong.

Excelling not only in scholarship, but in the support of extra-curricular activities as well, members of our class obtained coveted scholarships and occupied the highest school offices. Selling ribbons to boost school spirit at athletic events and to build our class treasury, landscaping the grove, presenting "The Christmas Story," and producing Class Day were major projects for us. With charm and personality our girls reigned over Homecoming activities and May Day.

With Class Day, parties, Baccalaureate, and finally, graduation, our high school career reached a brilliant climax. Suddenly, we were faced with the future, the fulfillment of our goals and the realization of our dreams. In June, we, the Class of '64, made our final exit — with hope and courage as passwords.

"MY AUTOBIOGRAPHY? Got an A — she said it was original!"

CLASS DAY comes — and all too soon!

capture vivid memories

We, the seniors, are the oldest class. Eagerly we await our parts in a greater world; yet we cling to high school. Ours is the anxiety of College Boards, the frustrating effort of an autobiography, the finality of spring exams. For us the hilarity of Twirp Day and the comradeship of break hold a special meaning, for soon we will be gone. We sign annuals reluctantly; farewells do not come easily. With graduation night, high school is over. Holding our diplomas, we know, "A time that once was, is now only a memory."

TWIRP!

RIBBONS + personality = dimes for the Senior treasury.

JULY 10, 1946 — AUGUST 4, 1963

Exuberance of the crowd...

After dodging the multitude of cars driven by GHS' careful students, George Grimstone feels that he has accomplished a momentous feat when he squeezes through the stadium gates. At his first football game, George is caught up in the enthusiasm of the crowd. A reproving bonk on the head from a conscientious student makes him realize that the national anthem is being played, and George pauses to sing the remaining bars.

The game proceeds with the noise and excitement of beating drums, cheering voices, and players on the field fighting for victory. George quickly recognizes that this football game is like "knock-a-rock" back at the caves, except that here fewer people are knocked out by the rock.

"I'm a Whirlie too!" George yells in a frenzy of school spirit. "Grimsley is my school, and my team has just scored a downtouch — I mean a touchdown!"

The chaotic uproar of the spectators engulfs George's voice, cheering the Whirlies on to another triumph.

Monogram Club members encourage school spirit

The Lettermen of GHS proudly displayed their Monogram Club membership by wearing sweaters decorated with the traditional "G" emblem. Good sportsmanship, as well as athletic ability, was an admission requirement for each member.

The varsity sportsmen of the Monogram Club supported GHS athletic events with a variety of services. The selling of mum corsages prior to Homecoming became a newly-established tradition at GHS. Other projects included operating the down-markers at football games, selling tickets and programs during football seasons, and carrying water to thirsty players. Encouraging student attendance at sports events, the members worked to promote school spirit and to arouse greater student support of the athletic program.

Injuries and inexperience mar Whirlie grid record

DUNCAN GRABS Dempsey pass for TD.

Talent was plentiful on the 1963 Whirlie grid team, but injuries and inexperience proved costly to the Big Blue as they compiled a 4-6 season record and fell to a sixth place finish in the Central 4-A Conference.

Whirlie hopefuls Arlie Gribble and Wayne Edge were both lost for the season before the locals had completed their second game, and starters Keith Gulledge and Don Hartig suffered continuous aggravations of early leg injuries. Many other lettermen were forced to miss more than one contest.

Statistically, the Whirls outscored their opponents 140 to 124, but these figures were helped by 40-0 victories over Salisbury and Gray. Halfback Bobby Rives led the Big Blue's scoring with 48 points, 30 points more than his closest teammates could compile. The 160-pound junior rushed for 523 yards, averaging 4.1 yards per carry to lead Grimsley in rushing also.

The powerful Whirlie line proved to be a key factor in the Grimsley effort. Ends Lynn Duncan and Ed McLean, tackle Hartig, and guard Ed Walke were chosen on the All-Central 4-A team, while Tommy Pugh, Wayne Burgess, and Charles Pressley rounded out the forward wall, which averaged over 200 pounds per man.

MASS tackling by Fayetteville Bulldogs is successful in stopping Whirlie halfback.

EVERY GOOD gridder must take his share of tumbles.

The backfield proved to be the Nemesis for many Whirls, as Rives was the only constant starter throughout the entire season. Toward the second half of the campaign, however, the backfield became stationary, being completed by Larry Dempsey, Rives, Gulledge, and Lennie Maynor. Frankie Leonard saw much action, moreover, alternating with Maynor at the other halfback post.

Under the guidance of rookie coach Steve Yates, the Jayvee football team compiled a 6-1-1 record, losing only to the Smith varsity. Led by backs Jack Whitley, Steve Hazel, and Tommy Holyfield, the Whirlie yearlings won the Central 4-A jayvee division in convincing style. Other standouts included Kirk Crumpler, Charlie Apple, Bryan Cofer, and Bill Gordon. Coach John Gordy assisted Mr. Yates in directing the jayvees.

Whirls down W-S Reynolds for State 4-A crown

By accurate shooting, strong rebounding, and smart play-making, the 1963-64 Whirlie basketball team won the State 4-A championship defeating all tournament foes by comfortable margins. The valuable win over Reynolds was the fifteenth consecutive victory for the phenomenal Whirlies, who claimed a 19-4 season mark.

Guard Alex Cheek and forward Ed Fellers paced the Whirls, both hitting in double figures, while center Larry Dempsey was also a prime scorer. Whit Payne and Ben McMakin rounded out the line-up that brought Grimsley its first state crown since 1959. The champs also had a strong bench, giving them the necessary depth for the top spot.

With a well-balanced attack, the Whirlie swimming team compiled a 10-3 season record and took the Central 4-A Conference crown by sweeping honors in the conference meet. Leading the tankmen was Senior Larry Hannibal, who broke the state record in the 100-yard backstroke with a time at 59.6 seconds. Hannibal is the only school boy in North Carolina who has swum this event in less than a minute.

Four other school records were broken by the members of what Coach Bob Sawyer calls one of his "stronger teams." Moreover, most of the swimmers will return for the 1964-65 season.

STEVE MARTIN, shown overpowering Reynolds opponent, was a standout on the Whirlie mat team.

Four days after Cassius Clay proclaimed himself "King of the World" upon winning the world heavyweight boxing championship, Grimsley's James "Butch" Walker successfully defended his state heavyweight wrestling crown by pinning his South Mecklenburg opponent. For Walker, this victory ended a brilliant high school wrestling career in which he lost only one match in two years.

The Whirlie grapplers, under Coach Ray Oxendine, compiled a 6-8 season record. The loss of Steve Martin and Robbie Greene hindered the team cause as both boys were top prospects for the state crown in their weight division. Other standouts for Grimsley included Chris Cory, Perry Benbow, Roger Dalton, Bill Strickland, and Mike Justice.

CHAMPIONSHIP foursome practice putting.

Led by a talented group of yearlings, the Grimsley linksmen stroked their way to conference and state honors during the 1963 season. Sophomores Joe Inman, Charles Snipes, and Buzz Sawyer and junior Howard Permar compiled a 608 total at the state tournament in Chapel Hill, seven strokes better than Fayetteville, Henderson, Myers Park, and Reynolds, who all tied for second place. Inman placed fifth in individual honors. The Whirlies had previously edged Reynolds for the Central 4-A title at Starmount Forest, the locals' home course. Fred Williams being the only graduating senior on the 1963 squad, the Whirlies were loaded with hopefuls in 1964. Among other top linksmen who returned for the 1964 campaign were David Williams, John Long, John Thompson, and Mike Schleuter.

Crothers leads Grimsley netmen to 5-5-1 record

The 1963 tennis team got off to a roaring start with three consecutive wins, but after closely bowing to Page 4-5, the Whirlies suffered a six-game streak in which they lost five and tied one. The netmen took the last two contests to gain an even 5-5-1 record for the season. Leading the effort for the netmen was senior Frank Crothers, who received strong support from Ed McLean, Ret Turner, Chuck Hughes, and Dick Meyer, who started in that order.

Coach Frank Bondanella's biggest problem in 1964 was lack of experienced players. Ed McLean, who was second man in 1963, was the only prominent starter returning. Rusty Maynor and Robert Whitaker, however, gained much experience by alternating in the sixth spot.

Whirlies fail to capture Central title for first time

Although the 1963 Grimsley baseball squad failed to capture the Central 4-A Conference championship for the first time in six years, the youthful Whirlie nine displayed the talent and vigor characteristic of all previous Whirlie diamond champs, and they never were out of the race until the last game.

Entering their last game with rival Page, the Whirlies trailed the Pirates by the slim margin of one game. A brilliant pitching performance by Whirlie Alex Cheek and Pirate ace Robert Hughes climaxed the late season game, in which Page took a 3-2 decision, copping the Central 4-A crown.

Coach Lewis McCall had no cause for disappointment, however, as he had only three seniors on a squad that compiled a 10-4 record. He greeted seven returning starters for the 1964 campaign.

Trackmen are unbeaten in dual, triangular meets

The powerful 1963 Whirlie cindermen ran through all their dual and triangular meets undefeated and captured first place in the conference and sectional meets before they fell to a fifth place finish in their finale, the state meet in Raleigh.

Playing an important role in compiling this sensational record were undefeated miler Harry Boyte and high jump specialist Bob Powell. Other individual stand-outs include Irvin Pearce, Mickey Andrews, Paul Gibson, Paul Early, and Lennie Maynor. The last three returned for the 1964 campaign.

The cross country team finished twelfth in the 1963 state meet, with Whirlie Fred McCall capturing second individually.

1963-64 GIRLS' SWIMMING TEAM — A. Jamieson, Israel, Coach Bob Jamieson, Lashley, Murray.

Although the exceptional boys' football and basketball teams have always attracted record crowds, the girls' athletic teams, while compiling equally impressive records, have remained relatively unheralded. Last spring the girls captured the annual High Point Play Day for the third consecutive year, enabling them to keep the trophy. Including such events as volleyball, tennis, horseshoes, softball, and track, the Play Day was a true test of athletic prowess, and the Whirliettes won convincingly.

The girls were also victorious in a volleyball tournament held at Page last fall. Moreover the Grimsley athletes participate annually in a play day held at UNC-G, but the girls have not been as successful at the local college as they have at other meets.

GAA awards scholarship to outstanding member

After an absence of three years, swimming returned to the girls' sports scene. Although the team was small in number, each girl was a standout on Coach Jamieson's summer team.

Led by Judy Balderacchi, the Girls' Athletic Association continued its service to Grimsley. Some GAA projects included an open house for prospective members, a volleyball tournament for the junior high schools, and the awarding of a scholarship to a member of the GAA. The latter project was initiated in 1963 and Mary Jane Egbert was the recipient.

The girls' association also gives two trophies each year — one to the outstanding basketball player and one to the best athlete. Gail Weston took both honors last year.

Every second filled...

Disheartened, George Grimstone emerges from the inevitable Friday afternoon chemistry test. His anxiety about his grades lessens, however, as he rushes to a brief service club meeting at 3:30. Because his every second is filled by time-consuming schoolwork, coupled with other energy-demanding activities, George's high school life parallels page thirty-two of a James Bond mystery.

After attending Junior Classical League, this bilingual man scurries to Student Council, and then with the speed of a track star he races off to Marching Band practice. As if this megaton burden weren't all too much for George's shallow cranium, he also cheerfully, yet somewhat numbly, volunteers to decorate for the Junior-Senior Prom and to help landscape the grove for the School Beautiful project.

When the members of the Board of Admissions at Stoneville University review the application of a certain Grimstone, George Alvin, they will undoubtedly record on their stony tablets that he was the Grimsleyest Grimstone of them all.

AT WEEKLY council meetings student representatives attempt to solve school problems.

Student Council backs

The Student Council of 1963-64, holding its weekly meeting on each Tuesday afternoon, carried out a successful series of school projects, many of them frankly social, others based upon various needs. The Council sponsored two elections, one in the early fall for sophomores, and a more exciting and prolonged campaign in the spring for the rising junior and senior candidates for school offices.

In November the Council planned and financed a Homecoming celebration at a football game, climaxed by the crowning of a Homecoming queen. At Thanksgiving the Council collected donations from students, then purchased and distributed a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner to each member of the janitorial staff.

On January 25 and at the end of May, the Student Council sponsored formal dances. Many hours of strenuous effort, interrupted by jokes and errands, kept the Council members occupied for days before each dance, so that the gaiety and relaxation of these two happy occasions extended far beyond one evening for some students.

The Citizenship Pins, presented every six weeks to a deserving boy and girl in each class, were gifts from the Student Council. In addition to giving a welcoming party to all transfer students at GHS, the organization also conducted an assembly program designated as Honor Code Day. At this time Mr. Charles Phillips, one-time principal of Greensboro Senior High, spoke about the importance of integrity to each individual.

After the exciting election of new members to ally with the old, the organization of an eager and enthusiastic Youth Recreation Council was completed. Under the leadership of chairman Ellen Barrier, YRC planned and executed many projects in cooperation with the city Youth Councils.

At their weekly meetings the group discussed and planned open houses, which they sponsored in conjunction with the City Parks and Recreation Service. For these after-game open houses, members decorated the Girls' Gym and made colorful, attractive posters to encourage stronger student participation in the Council's projects.

A Whirlibird bulletin board concerning GHS athletic and social events added clever reminders to students in the main hall. Then in November the YRC constructed a colorful float which they entered in the Christmas parade.

Homecoming also illustrated the Youth Council's desire to further school spirit and socializing. At a gala open house on the evening before the High Point football game, the Homecoming Court were honored guests.

This year a new organization, the Pep Board, was formed at GHS to promote school spirit among students. Led by Miss Dixie Poe Huske and utilizing publicity as its main tool, the Board's four committees placed posters in prominent spots around the school, issued announcements, performed lively skits in assemblies, sponsored Blue and White Day and pep rallies, and thus increased student attendance at school programs, games, and dances.

The Library Council, advised by Miss Mildred Herring, faced innumerable duties in the library of GHS. Handling the constant circulation of books in and out of our library included stamping, mending, and shelving. Assistants also filed periodicals, prepared attractive and informative bulletin boards, located research material for inquiring students, and kept track of the library's many audio-visual aids.

The council had various programs and discussions every other Wednesday before school. Their schedule also included several dinner meetings for the librarians and their assistants. The council members attended group discussions and listened to noted speakers at the state meeting in the spring, at which Sara Ann Lynch served as president.

Student office assistants served the school by greeting guests, running errands, and providing information for both students and visitors. The dean's office workers performed many of the same tasks, in addition to checking on absentees and locating teachers and students.

The guidance counselors were dependent upon their assistants to help them keep precise schedules of appointments, supply students with college catalogs and vocational materials, and guide visitors around the school.

Counting, classifying, and checking books as well as issuing them were the tasks of the bookroom assistants. Lighting and props for assembly programs were supplied by the stage crew. The school store workers answered the never-ending demand for school supplies.

Thirty senior boys constituted the "elite" who handled the traffic problems of GHS's 1,800 students. Rainy days and naive sophomores tested the ingenuity and endurance of the group, but the members maintained order efficiently under the supervision of chief Jerry Jernigan and advisor Mr. Lody Glenn.

Throughout the school day squad members kept the mass of students moving smoothly to classes. Fire drills and assemblies also found the squad on the job and ready to offer assistance.

Every afternoon a long line of lumbering orange vehicles rumbled off the GHS campus to enter the maze of Greensboro traffic. These were the GHS school buses, manned by a group of safety-conscious, responsible student drivers, under the direction of Mr. Lody Glenn.

These drivers safely covered over 5,000 miles a week, carrying students to and from school. Punctuality and patience became major factors in maintaining a smoothly running program of highway safety.

All their time was not spent in work, however, for once a month they gathered for an informal supper with Mr. Glenn.

Musicians and directors of the GHS Orchestra practiced seriously and effectively, for their busy schedule of concerts and the number chosen for All-State reflect their ability and depth of experience. With Dr. Stanley Chapel directing, they played at the fall convention of North Carolina Music Educators, held at UNC-G.

In the spring they performed at the Southern Division of Music Educators of America, and played two original selections for the Southern Composers' League.

The hardest working musicians in the Orchestra were those 27 who were rewarded by being chosen to play in the All-State Orchestra and Workshop at Chapel Hill in January. Of the 27, 4 won first chairs in the Orchestra and 4 in the Workshop orchestra.

In addition to the class, sectional rehearsals helped develop the GHS singers into an experienced performing group.

Entertainment provided by the choir included diversified programs given at local civic organizations, such as the Kiwanis and Greensboro Civitan Clubs, the March meeting of Euterpe, and school assemblies and concerts. An outstanding feature of the choir, "The Queens Men" quartet, gave frequent command performances and made a version of the romantic ballad "Froggie-Went-a-Courtin' " well known in the halls of GHS.

The beginning girls' and boys' choruses found that fundamentals of choral singing — correct posture and breath control, accurate sight reading, expressive interpretations, and an optimistic attitude — were necessary for good vocal production. The advanced girls' glee club expanded their musical knowledge and experience by performing for two Torchlight ceremonies. Featuring several boys as soloists, the choruses also accompanied the Christmas Pageant.

The Greensboro Orchestra Guild, an organization for people interested in any field of music, stimulated appreciation of music among its members by meeting twice a month at GHS for interesting and informative programs. Discussions, lectures, and exhibitions of various musical talents were presented for the members. Several composers, including Thomas Cousins and Serge de Gastyne, addressed the organization.

The members helped to promote the concerts of Greensboro's Little Orchestra Society and the Greensboro Symphony by ushering, providing stage hands, and making posters for publicity. The club expanded its activities to aid in promoting the performances of all GHS musical groups.

Musical skill and interest uphold Euterpe-Symphonia

The talented members of Euterpe-Symphonia attended regular meetings at which discussions and performances were held to increase their musical appreciation and skills. At each of the meetings, members played various pieces which held a special interest for them. This not only provided entertainment, but enabled them to become better acquainted with different aspects of the musical field. Often noted musicians visited Euterpe meetings to introduce the organization to the professional field of music. In April the senior musicians proved their own merit by competing in a formal recital for the honor of performing for the Senior Euterpe Club. Members also gained recognition and acclaim for their talents in the local and state contests which they entered.

OFFICERS are Bunton, President Martinez, Karesh, Millikin.

Not until a person has earned 100 points — achieved by taking part in plays, selling tickets, and making posters — can he join Playmasters. Among their productions was "Father Knows Best," a joint project with the sophomore class, given in the late fall. In the spring, they labored over a series of one-act plays at Guilford College in state competition for the honor of performing at Chapel Hill.

Numerous curtain calls, acknowledging a play's success, amply repaid the actors for their many time-consuming rehearsals. Faces, greased with pancake make-up, shone under glaring stage lights, but the Playmasters agreed, "There's no business like show business."

Their initiation was held during the fall in the Home Economics Building. After a covered-dish dinner supplied by the students themselves, the initiation ceremony began, as the boys chose hats and then developed various impromptu skits around the particular style of the hat. Some of the girls dramatized Cinderella, with Claudia McGill in the leading role.

Some of the Playmasters' projects within the group itself included purchasing pins and charms for the members and presenting a musical comedy in the late spring.

For the first time, this year the acting group nominated several people for the Governor's School in the field of the fine arts, including dancing and drama.

EDITOR JOYCE GREEN and advisor Miss Virginia Powell examine color processing at photography studio.

March 1963 saw the foundation laid for this 1964 Whirligig. The staff, under Editor Joyce Green, tossed ideas around and decided upon a four-color picture, reverse division pages, "progress" as a theme, and sketches of a "George Grimstone" to poke satiric fun at our school's still-not-quite-popular name.

Then with September came the headlong rush toward the February deadline. Linda Dance directed the sale of ads and sponsorships, while Marsha Brady scheduled a ravaging "picture day" in October for organization photos. Francie Ferguson and her writers wore every Thesaurus to tatters as they agonized over copy; Susan Stansbury composed multiple captions for candid pictures, accepted rejections, wrote again. Martha Kistler kept making sketches of "George," while Lyn Nichols compiled and edited faculty copy, John Peeler and Bob Albright mounted portraits, class editors checked endless lists, Don Dalton used up miles of film, and Eddie Strange worked at telling the GHS sports story. As the deadline loomed ever closer, Joyce coordinated countless details and cajoled or prodded lagging staff members to finish assignments.

Zero hour finally came and the staff, with both relief and anticipation, saw this nostalgic concoction called Whirligig disappear into Mr. Fleming's voluminous briefcase.

ADVISOR Mrs. Peggy Woodlief, Editor Pritchard, and Managing Editor Hester examine a recent issue of High Life.

High Life, GHS's newspaper, with Mrs. Peggy Woodlief as advisor, had a productive year in 1963-1964. Not only did its circulation pass 1350, but also new features were added and changes made in format. A book review, movie review, and Bill Iler's humor column were added to the feature section. A major make-up change was the introduction of a new "High Life" cut atop each issue of the paper. "Ann Slanders" gave advice to all, and frequent snapshots spoofed "Okeefenokee Swamp" and other school jokes.

The staff members continued their coverage of news and sports, incorporating editorials and features to deal mainly with school problems and events. Every other week High Life staff members began planning a new paper.

In a staff meeting, ideas for editorials, news, and features were discussed by Betty Pritchard, editor-in-chief, and Martin Hester, managing editor, planned the editorial page and tried to coordinate the various newspaper departments. News editor Jane Turpin gave out assignments to her reporters. Mike Cowhig developed ideas for features, while sports editor Charlie Perry, writing "Sportsology," argued with Paula Main as to whether Davidson or Duke would win.

The first-year journalism class solicited ads from Greensboro businesses, and every other Friday Meegie Crawford directed the distribution of High Life. She and her staff, consisting of students who had a third period study hall, counted the issues and distributed them to each classroom.

AT ANNUAL Faculty Tea, FTA members entertain GHS faculty and retired Greensboro teachers.

GHS students interested in teaching gained a vivid picture of many facets of the profession through FTA activities, such as serving as teacher aides during their study period.

At the monthly meetings speakers like Miss Carrie Phillips described the joys and requirements of the teaching profession. Miss Phillips was once principal of Brooks Elementary School, where FTA members assisted teachers in the primary grades.

In October the Future Teachers sponsored a student assembly at which Dr. Lois Edinger, President-elect of the National Education Association, spoke on "The Magic of Education."

There Judy Lavine was Grimsley's candidate for the office of state secretary. Also in November the group invited both retired and active faculty members to a tea in their honor at the Alumnae House of UNC-G. The reception, held on Teacher Appreciation Day, provided an opportunity for Future Teachers to become better acquainted with people already in the profession. Members of FTA issued invitations, decorated the room, and provided musical entertainment for their guests.

Science Club visits labs

Active young minds, over thirty of them, channeled their extra time toward scientific fields in the GHS Science Club this year. The club, sponsored by Mrs. Kate Everhart and Mrs. Jacqueline Poer, enjoyed varied programs of films, such as ones on Telstar and DNA, and speakers, Mr. Brad Hawkins from the Junior Museum, Dr. Hollis Rogers from UNC-G and others. Supplementing these school meetings were interesting trips to Wesley Long Pathology Laboratory, P. Lorillard Research Department, and the State Science Fair held in Durham. The trip to the Pathology Laboratory was a new experience for many members who were fascinated by the "behind the scenes" work in the hospital.

Members visited doctors and other medical workers. In May, during a trip to Duke University, the members observed the hospital facilities and became absorbed in watching an open-heart operation.

Particularly enjoyable were the District and State Health Careers Conventions, where students learned more about their special interests through tours of medical laboratories and hospitals, work-shops on particular vocational interests, and lectures by famous doctors.

Boasting over 120 members, the JCL encouraged enthusiasm about the civilization of ancient Rome. Following the traditional candlelight induction ceremony, JCL presented a colorful Christmas program in which members of the orchestra accompanied carols sung in Latin. In February Miss Sara Mims, a GHS faculty member, and Jerry Jernigan, a Cicero student, shared their 1963 European adventures and slides with JCL. They especially emphasized their impression of Rome.

During the fall two members of the GHS chapter described the national JCL convention at Lawrence, Kansas, for Latin students at Jackson Junior High School.

On March 21, thirty-six members journeyed to Chapel Hill, where Cynthia Wharton served as state secretary of JCL. The speeches of Dr. Ullman and other Latin scholars made the students more aware of the importance of Latin in today's world.

Debate Club participates in statewide competition

After several years of inactivity the Debate Club was reorganized this year under the direction of Miss Mozelle Causey. Affiliated with the Dramatics Club, its nineteen members strove to achieve a polished ability which they hoped would lead them to a climaxing statewide debate on the topic, "Resolved: That Social Security benefits should be extended to include complete medical care."

In preparation for this event, they undertook practice contests with other local clubs, met in December with many of these groups in Chapel Hill for discussions, and attended a series of debates at State College on February 28-29. Experienced speakers, such as Dr. James Best and other prominent physicians, provided a thorough background of information for the state contest, as they attended the club's monthly meetings.

The GHS chapter of the Sociedad Honoraria Hispania stimulated interest in Spanish culture by presenting informative speakers, such as Cuban students attending Guilford College. Mr. Whittemore, of the GHS Spanish department, shared with the members interesting experiences of his 1963 Mexican trip. At Christmas the group met to enjoy an authentic Spanish meal at which only Spanish was spoken.

On Awards Day the organization presented a twenty-five dollar savings bond to the Spanish scholar who had maintained the highest average in that subject.

Through the History Honor Society, GHS students developed and broadened their interests in history and current events. Members presented lively discussions and debates on matters such as cultural exchange, political organizations, and foreign aid. Most of the bimonthly meetings were presided over by student discussion leaders, and the group explored such controversial topics as the John Birch Society. In February Hans-Rainer Trebin, our German exchange student, presented an informative program on the history of Germany between the World Wars.

In the spring, the organization sponsored a student assembly featuring Pam Pfaff, a UNC-G student who toured the Soviet Union last summer. The highlight of the year was the annual spring picnic, where members elected officers for the next year.

ADVISOR MRS. MADLIN accepts newly inducted Torchlight members at fall tapping.

"I now challenge you, member of Torchlight, to go forth and seek out those deemed worthy of membership in Torchlight National Honor Society." With these words the president of the honor group opened the semi-annual Torchlight tapping in the fall. Four members of the society then outlined the attributes necessary for admission leadership, service, scholarship, and character. Torchlight exists as an honorary organization, instituted as a tribute to the dedicated, industrious student.

In addition to the familiar tapping rituals in November and March, the society provided a scholarship of three hundred dollars for a deserving senior. To finance this award, members sponsored their yearly talent show in Highlighting programs were an inspirational Christmas dinner at which Dr. Claud Bowen delivered a meaningful speech and a highly hilarious initiation party which was held in February at the home of Betty Pritchard to welcome the newly tapped members.

In mid-April a group of GHS Torchlighters met with members of other chapters of the National Society at Camp Lejeune, to discuss their ambitions and philosophics with other outstanding students of North Carolina. Larry Dempsey and Bob Albright represented the GHS organization at the State Convention.

CO-OP students display generosity and talents

Through the Co-Op program, under Mrs. Kathryn McEntire's direction, students pursued interesting careers as receptionists, stenographers, bookkeepers, and clerical workers. They not only worked several hours a day in these jobs, but read widely and kept careful notes pertaining to their specific jobs, so that they could be more useful and interested as workers.

For a month before Christmas, the Co-Op students collected food, clothing, and other gifts for a needy family. At a "work-party"

On February 11 they presented a talent show at the YWCA, to earn funds for their share in the Bosses' Banquet later in the spring. There each worker socialized with her employer and members of the two other vocational groups.

In addition to monthly dinner meetings at a cafeteria, the group got together for field trips. They visited the Daily News' offices. Southern Bell, and J. P. Stevens. As members of the National Secretaries Association, two GHS delegates attended a Future Business Leaders of America conference in Winston-Salem.

After learning about methods and opportunities in marketing and distribution, the Distributive Education students gained valuable experience and skill by applying this knowledge at thirty-eight Greensboro firms. To vary their instruction, DE students took field trips to Cone Mills, Carter Fabrics, and Guilford Dairy; and they also evaluated the window displays in Friendly Shopping Center.

As members of DECA, a professional organization for high school students, GHS's DE members attended district, state, and national conventions. Charles Sandlin of GHS was elected to serve as associate president of the sixth district of NCDEC, and Christine Thrower was chosen secretary-treasurer.

The DECA activities included contests related to class instruction and job experience in the fields of job interview, sales demonstration, ad layout and copy writing, speech, and DE student-of-the-year. Grimsley's Pat Dean, Dorothy Key, and Jerry Carpenter placed first in district speech and job-application contests. At the State Convention in Raleigh, Dorothy Key won first place in a contest and, with it, a trip to Chicago. Jerry Carpenter won a second place.

Socializing offered an added attraction this year when members sponsored a hootenanny for the ten district DE clubs, and held their Midwinter's Dance at the YWCA. A "cook-out" at Guilford Park welcomes new members for 1964-1965 into the club.

ICT prepares students for industrial positions

JAN MASSENGALE trains for future career at dentist's office.

Employed by doctors, hospitals, engineering and construction companies, and other firms, Industrial Cooperative Training students applied skills and knowledge learned in the classrooms to gain further experience in an actual job. In the classes they studied income tax forms, insurance policies, consumer economics, and information directly related to each one's particular job.

The students were members of the Vocational Industrial Club, a state organization. Nancy Kaczmarek, serving this year as state president of VIC, presided at the state convention in Raleigh. There delegates elected new state officers, toured Raleigh business firms, and discussed future occupations.

In March the ICT members joined the other two vocational groups to present an informative assembly program to sophomores and juniors, as a method of recruiting new students to the cooperative program next year.

The Charioteers Club was formed in 1963 by the Charity League of Greensboro. Composed of thirty-five girls, the club met bi-monthly. The services of the Charioteers included collecting for various charities and working in the tuberculosis clinic. In March the group presented its annual fashion show as the money-making project of the year. Much of the proceeds of this event was donated to the School Beautiful Committee for completing the construction of the Grove. The girls also contributed the material with which to fill a planting box in the grove. For every home football and basketball game the Charioteers decorated the students' cars with blue and white streamers in order to boost school spirit.

The Exchangettes eneouraged Greensboro eitizens to vote on the eontroversial state amendments. The girls won fifty dollars for having the highest average, working 2.3 hours per girl.

A talent show held in February at the Starmount Presbyterian Chureh, was their fundraising project. Featuring club members and students of GHS, the show was enthusiastically received. With proceeds from the talent show, the club set up a fund of supplementary educational materials as their major project.

The members met bi-monthly and occasionally with their brother club, the Junior Exehange Club, for a dinner meeting.

The Senior Hi-Y Club completed another successful year with service to the community and school. By holding a barbecue and Brunswick Stew sale, the club was able to carry out additional service projects. During the Christmas holidays the members spread seasonal joy by aiding a needy family and giving a party for underprivileged children. The club repaired the sundial near the Science Building and presented an informative guest speaker at its annual student assembly in the spring.

Hi-Y members attended business meetings every Wednesday night at the YMCA, and once monthly they held dinner meetings at various restaurants.

The Interact Club, organized in 1962 by the Greensboro Rotary Club, has served the school and community through many of its activities. Since Interact functions all over the world, the Grimsley club strove to promote international understanding among its members.

The thirty-five members furthered their purpose by giving a flag to the school, sponsoring service club bulletin boards in the main hall, exchanging a Greensboro slide collection with other clubs around the world, helping with the March of Dimes and Polio drives, giving the four school emblems to the school, and adding to the beauty of the school by working on the Benjamin-Westover corner.

The club sponsored a German exchange student, Hans-Rainer Trebin, who lived in the homes of Interact members and attended Grimsley during the second semester.

CIVINETTES WORK to boost voting turnout for controversial state amendments.

The Junior Civinettes, oldest girls' service club at GHS, began the year with enthusiasm and vitality by donating a much-needed air conditioner for Mr. Glenn's office. Also at the opening of school, pencils were given to sophomores, welcoming them to GHS. The Civinettes encouraged the beautification of the school campus by keeping their rose garden neat and attractive and by contributing to School Beautiful. As a thoughtful and rewarding service, the girls made scrapbooks of comic strips in October to donate to children at Barium Springs. Three oak benches and two artificial plants were beautifying additions to the main lobby.

The Civinettes rendered service to the school throughout the year by providing inspiring devotionals on Monday mornings. Every Friday each girl washed several blackboards to help

The Civinettes instigated the Youth Jury and took major steps toward its establishment. As their fund-raising project, the club members sold over three thousand pounds of Claxton fruitcake. The girls celebrated the Christmas season with a Christmas dinner party at Al Boling's Steak House.

Civinette president Anne Phillips served as 1963-1964 North Carolina District Civitan Treasurer. In April, Civinettes and Civitans attended the state convention in Asheville.

The Junior Civitan Club began the school year by distributing to sophomores and transfer students the eighth annual student handbook, containing information on the curriculum, activities, and rules of GHS. Early in the year, the Junior Civitans undertook the project of replacing the numbers on classroom doors.

School spirit was an active field in which the club eagerly participated by constructing a new head cheerleader's stand, distributing pocket bulletins of athletic schedules, flying the victory flag, and ushering at football games. Working closely with the School Beautiful Committee, the members donated benches for the Grove and a substantial sum of money, as well as constructing concrete sidewalks in the grove near the Home Economics Building.

Last year the GHS Junior Civitans were awarded fifty dollars at the state convention in Burlington for their achievement in selling the most fruitcakes in competition with other state chapters.

Once each month the Civitans attended a Sunday service in Greensboro with the Civinettes. By presenting their annual Ben L. Smith Student-Teacher Award on Awards Day, the Civitans showed their interest in building citizenship at GHS.

GHS' Junior Exchange Club boosts school spirit

EXCHANGE CLUB members discuss profitable sale of "Frost-Off" after weekly meeting.

GHS' Junior Exchange Club, meeting every Wednesday night, has again proved that "age is no indication of merit." Although it has been organized for only three years, it can look back upon three successful years of service. The members boosted school spirit by presenting their annual plaque to the homeroom having the best attendance at the Senior-Page football game. Other projects included the placement of two new scoreboards in the gymnasium, the donation of funds to the School Beautiful Committee, the collection for the March of Dimes, and their annual contributions to the Heart Fund. Junior Exchange members also worked in beautifying an area between the cafeteria and Benjamin Parkway.

To finance their program, the club members sponsored a profitable de-icer sale. During this sale, lasting for approximately two months, ninety cases of one dollar cans were sold. Probably one of their most enjoyable accomplishments was the distribution of more than one hundred bags of confetti at the Homecoming football spectacle. In the late Spring, the Junior Exchange Club, along with the Exchangettes, presented a plaque to the most outstanding boy and girl in the graduating senior class. The club members voted on qualified candidates, and the results were announced at the annual Awards Day assembly program.

NO OBSTACLE prevents Jaycees from working on their Hamilton Lakes clean-up project.

The Junior Jaycees began the 1963-1964 year with spirit and determination. Emphasizing service to both community and school, they greeted incoming sophomores with orientation letters briefly discussing the aims of the Jaycee club. The group contributed money to the School Beautiful Project as well as draining and beautifying the area around the boys' gym with grass and shrubs. The annual "Name the Whirlibird" contest added color and excitement to Homecoming. A transistor radio was awarded to the winner by Strandberg Television and Appliance Company. During the Christmas season a manger scene was erected on the front lawn of GHS.

LIVELY ANTICS of Whirlibird at half-time are infectious.

MANGER SCENE on front campus of GHS is growing tradition of Jaycees.

Throughout the year the Junior Jaycees also served our community. Beautifying Hamilton Lakes Parks provided the club one of its major projects. On Saturdays during the fall and spring, members raked leaves, removed debris, and cleared brush to make the parks more attractive. Next in importance was the repainting of the traditional "G" garbage cans, which are a necessity in keeping GHS neat. Jaycees collected money for charities and also participated in paper drives and the GGO.

Each week the Whirlie-of-the-Week Award was presented to a GHS athlete in recognition of his outstanding play, and every six weeks the club honored with a plaque the homeroom having the highest scholastic average.

On Awards Day, the Jaycees' Roger Hobbs Trophy was presented to the outstanding athlete of the year. A three hundred dollar scholarship was also awarded to a deserving senior.

The Junior Jaycettes, sponsored by the Greensboro Jaycees, were organized early in 1963 to expand the scope of services rendered by girls at GHS. The club showed vigor and enthusiasm as it entered numerous service projects. Members participated in various charity drives and collections and assisted in the "get-out-and-vote" campaign. Throughout the year, the Jaycettes aided in School Beautiful projects and kept their planting box in the Grove attractive.

In April the Jaycettes worked as assistants to the Greensboro Jaycees at the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament. The girls sold and distributed refreshments, and also modeled golf clothes and accessories. During the spring, the club helped plan the Jaycee Convention, to be held during the summer in Greensboro.

The O. Henry Juniors of Grimsley organized in 1963 with the O. Henry Woman's Club as its sponsor. During its first year, the club members participated in various charity drives, refinished the desk in the main hall of GHS, and served as usherettes at the barbershop quartet. The members' most rewarding project was serving as counselors at Camp Joy, a summer camp for retarded children supported by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation.

During the 1963-1964 school year, they planted two hundred jonquils in front of GHS and maintained a planting box of pansies in the Grove. In girls' service club intramurals, the O. Henry Juniors were basketball and volleyball champs. As their fund-raising project, the club gave a benefit bridge in January.

The Key Club entered its sixteenth year of service at GHS as the oldest campus organization. The first of many projects of the Kiwanis-sponsored group was the purchase of a plexiglass sign marking the entrance of the GHS football stadium.

The next service was setting a lighted bulletin board at the Westover Terrace entrance of the school to keep GHS students and Greensboro citizens well informed of school activities.

In November thirty club members distributed the sixteenth edition of their invaluable directory to faculty and students. They also maintained the support of an orphan in Korea.

INDUSTRIOUS Key Club members work after home games to keep our stadium tidy.

Participation in intramurals, community service and charity drives claimed many of the afternoons and Saturdays of the club members. In continuing its support of school athletics, the Key Club distributed programs at the home basketball games and on Awards Day presented two sports-related honors, the Sandy Nininger Trophy and the Key Club Sportsmanship Trophy, to outstanding athletes.

Highlighting this productive year for Key Club was its major role in the annual convention. Early April brought around eight hundred young men to Greensboro to conduct business over a three-day weekend, when the GHS Key Club served as host to this Carolina District Convention.

The Seniorettes, the last service club to be organized in the spring of 1963, began its activities with the distribution of cards to the student body with the GHS "Fight Song" printed on them. Coupling service to the school with programs for their own entertainment, the Seniorettes prepared and tended a plot in the Grove as part of the School Beautiful Project.

Meeting every other Tuesday night the Seniorettes alternated between business meetings and dinner meetings. As a service to the community, the GHS Seniorettes collected more money for the muscular dystrophy drive than any other service club participating in the annual, city-wide collection conducted in November. The girls also collected for other charities throughout the school year.

The Sub-Juniors Woman's Club, organized early in 1963, is sponsored by the Greensboro Junior Woman's Club. At Thanksgiving, baskets were distributed at the Old Folks Home. In serving the community, the girls collected for various charity drives and dressed dolls for the Empty Stocking Fund. They took an active part in the "get-out-and-vote" campaign sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

The money-raising project was a sale of Butter Bit candy. The main school project of the Sub-Juniors was the donation of money to the library to buy magazine covers. The girls also helped the Junior Woman's Club with a fashion show and bridge benefit.

The girls met twice a month with their advisors Mrs. Elsa Martinelli and Mrs. Carolyn Smith. Sub-Junior Toni Sousa served as North Carolina State Girls' Clubs Scrapbook Chairman.

Memories and dreams...

Marching with the other graduating seniors into the gym, George Grimstone turns for one last glance at the campus. His eyes rove nostalgically over old and new buildings, as he realizes that he will never again amble into their classrooms.

George remembers how insignificant and baffled he felt on his first day at GHS, and how intimidating sounded someone's yell: "Don't go up those stairs, sophomore!" The hectic lines of registration file through his mind. From the stadium exuberant echoes of past football games bounce back to him. George recalls Tuesday assemblies and hurried chats between classes, lunch and the frenetic exodus from school at 3:30. He remembers the panic that seized him as he scribbled letters and words on fateful examination papers, and he recaptures his deep sorrow when the name "Greensboro Senior High" was only a memory.

The line of seniors moves forward, carrying George and his memories with it. To the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" he reaches for an outstretched hand and clutches his diploma. George Grimstone belongs to Grimsley no longer.

GROVE beautification, in its earlier stages, required skilled work with concrete and brick.

CHAIRMAN Gulledge admires trophy won by GHS in School Beautiful competition.

With dreams and blueprints, aching backs and blisters, Student Council members and student volunteers began work on School Beautiful last Spring. They gave Saturdays and hard labor, hiring brick masons to help. Their efforts paid off in an award for the best campus improvement in Greensboro.

This year the work was carried on, under the direction of Mrs. Joe M. Hunt and a student committee. To complete the project, she and her committee, plus several service clubs, planted azaleas and bulbs, making the Grove a thing of beauty for the Greensboro Garden Club Tour in April.

"I like that 'Lay on, Macduff!' part."

MEMORABLE NATIVITY scene is impressive tableau of Christmas Pageant.

SPECIAL SPORTS assembly in gym entertains students and faculty alike.

We anticipated Tuesdays when we were dismissed from a morning class to attend an assembly program. Whether listening to devotions, laughing at hilarious pep-skits, awaiting the introduction of a guest speaker, or proudly singing our revised "Alma Mater" we were aware of our massive number when congregated in the auditorium. Assemblies on special occasions followed traditional procedures. Torchlight tapping; spring nominating convention, an exhibition of gay political confusion; the Christmas Pageant and Class Day were highlights of assembly entertainment. Plays at GHS were treated with generous publicity, and each performance maintained the reputation of an outstanding drama department. The consistently excellent Junior Class Play and Playmasters productions were received with applause and repetitious curtain calls, which continued to assure the casts of student approval.

Grimsley social functions provide enjoyable feature

There is a certain enthusiasm to high school football, a certain fervor, an air of earnest suspense that mingles with the zest of autumn to make the football season golden. The climax of the season was the Homecoming game and the crowning of the queen. She does not reign by merit of her beauty. She is not chosen for poise and charm alone. For her, school spirit is the basic criterion. Our queen, Ellen Barrier, crowned on a windy November night, was chairman of the Youth Council and a cheerleader. Although all the girls in her court were noted for school spirit, it was she who reigned as queen of GHS at the height of our 1963 football season.

1963 HOMECOMING QUEEN Ellen Barrier is crowned by student body vice-president Holsenbeck.

"Back at the cave we call it the 'Peridocyle.'"

MIDWINTER'S transports students far from reality of exam week into one romantic evening.

as outlet for enthusiasm

At a time when the greyness of exams and winter was almost too much to bear, Midwinter's came as a welcome relief. The dance, whose haunting theme this year was "Days of Wine and Roses," gave weary students a chance to be fairy-tale glamorous and elegant as they danced and socialized on the dance floor. The lively Ascots, wine-bottle candles lighting small tables, and international travel posters added to the relaxing atmosphere of Midwinter's 1964.

Compared to the dreaminess of Midwinter's, the open houses after home football and basketball games were jazzy and informal and alive with vibrant gaiety. Here students could shrug off pressures and worries and abandon themselves to fun. For the moment they were free from the responsibilities maturity and growing-up bring.

OPEN HOUSE pastimes are dancing, socializing, and re-playing the game.

Carole Lineberry reigns over May Day activities

LIGHT-HEARTED "peasants" entertain the May Queen and her court.

as the court spends day in "Merrie Olde England"

May Day was Spring incarnate, for although the weather was chilly, the day was bright and sunny. New-green trees and a brilliant blue sky lent added vividness to the rainbow-hued brocade gowns of the queen's attendants. The softness of May and the beauty of Queen Carole made the theme, "A Day in Merrie Olde England," come to life with the spirit of spring. For weeks before the actual day, there were many things to be done — an arch to be built, banners to be painted with bright colors, and endless rehearsals. Then came the day. The crowning of the queen and the peasants' dance were climaxed by the traditional dance around the May Pole. As surely as the flowers and the new life were a part of spring, so also were the May Day festivities.

MAY QUEEN Carole Lineberry, being crowned by student body president Bill James, displays her regal charm.

1963 MAY COURT and escorts. Front: Soph. Maid of Honor P. Pearce, I. Pearce; Sr. Maid of Honor Root, Clark; May Queen Lineberry, junior attendants; Jr. Maid of Honor Newman, Hutton. Second row: Yelverton, Nuckolls; Harris, Washam; D. Huckabee, Marshall; Andrews, Jones; Earle, Andrews; Pfaff, Bullard.

A BREAK for the combo at the Spring Prom is a cue for happy students to gather around the "wishing well."

Seniors, on brink of new frontiers, are overcome by 1963 SENIOR CLASS presents unforgettable "West High Story" on Class Day.

In the last days of school, there were the seniors who knew they would never again walk through the halls of GHS as students. At every turn they were reminded that soon they would leave. They enjoyed one last nostalgic taste of a high school dance at the Spring Prom. With the Senior Tea and Class Day, the seniors knew that their remaining days at GHS were few. The days took on a final note of sadness with the completion of exams, the clang of a locker shutting for the last time, the echo of footsteps in an empty hall.

Then with graduation, a chapter in their lives was closed as they received their diplomas. Since they had been sophomores irrevocable changes had taken place in their lives as they grew and matured. They could not go back, only forward, for they were caught in the moving, irresistible stream of change called progress.

"At last!"

Acknowledgments

The publication of a successful yearbook necessitates the efforts not only of a dedicated staff but also of many others behind the scenes. We would now like to express a special note of thanks to many of the people who have assisted us with the 1964 Whirligig.

To MR. RALPH VAN DYKE, MISS MOLLY FLANDERS, and the expert craftsmen at Jahn and Ollier Engraving Company, we express our appreciation for our invaluable dummy, the superior engravings you produced for us, and your special assistance in creating effective division pages. MR. FRANK FLEMING and MR. EARL POWELL of Washburn Printing Company deserve our warmest thanks for their help, advice, and encouragement in printing our book.

At Martin's Studio we say "Thank you," to MR. CAROL MARTIN for our four-color photograph and to MR. MALCOLM MILLER for his consistently superior pictures and his kind cooperation and unfailing good nature. We wish to thank MRS. BETTY HAND and her staff at Meyer's Studio for our excellent individual portraits for the class sections. MRS. MARGARET HADDEN and MRS. KATHRYN McENTIRE deserve our appreciation for their generous sharing of their telephones and typewriters. At the Greensboro Record we wish to thank MR. JOHN CATHEY for supplying us with action shots for our Athletics section. To MISS IDA BELLE MOORE, for checking student records; MISS ROWENA MONTAGUE, for keeping accurate financial records and writing checks for our expenses; and MRS. JESSIE COLTRANE, for collecting and tabulating our money for book sales, we express our sincere thanks.

All home room teachers and other faculty members have been very considerate in collecting money for Whirligig subscriptions, checking lists, excusing students to have pictures made, and allowing staff members to work on Whirligig at various times when a deadline was near. We wish to express our deep gratitude to MR. A. P. ROUTH, our financial advisor, and to MR. R. L. GLENN, for making announcements, taking money to the bank, and giving us their encouragement and interest.

Most important of all is MISS VIRGINIA POWELL, our advisor, who has laughed with us in our antics, amended our numerous errors, worked many extra hours to help us publish this Whirligig, and taught us much about publishing a yearbook. Without her sincere devotion and aid, we would have been hopelessly lost! To all the many people who helped to make the fifteenth Whirligig a reality, we wish to express our gratitude. We give it to you, the students and administrators and faculty of GHS, with the warm wish that it presents a true and memorable reflection for you of our school year 1963-64.
